When seen at the depot, Mr. Benjamen stated that he would probably drag over in Santa Fe for a day and then continue on home. He made a written guarantee that he would see that at least 150 people from the two towns of Las Vegas would attend the Irrigation Congress and Territorial Fair the coming September.

Mother Nature, Ever Fruitful.

Its vast extent and its abundant growth.

Abundance, so far as the products of the orchards and horticultural arts can be, is the boast of the season. The people of the Colorado empire, as the Portland, Oregon, Washington, and Seattle, the grain belt, are reaping and preventing. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, which counteracts the effects of malarious air and brackish water, unwholesome or unwanted diet, exposure, the fatigue of travel, and the disturbance of the stomach caused by rough weather at sea, and sometimes by railway traveling over a rough roadbed. Mariners, miners and western pioneers bear concurrent evidence to its defensive and reparative influence. Chills and fevers, rheumatism, inactivity of the kidneys, biliousness, dyspepsia and nervousness are all relieved by this incomparably fine alternative, corrective and invigorant, which physicians highly commend.

A Lady a Dog Became a Testotator.

A lady on whom San tells a remarkable anecdote of a dog who was cured of its evil habit of love for liquor. Some mischievous persons had so often given to her father's great dogs of bread soaked in beer that Neptune gave fond of the artificial dainty. One day when a large party was returning from a picnic, Nep was put on the back seat beside the driver of the carriage, as he seemed too tired to run home all the way. He must have drunk some liquor at the feast, for on the road he fell from the carriage to the ground. No bones were broken, though he must have got a severe shake and a fright in the fall. The result was that Nep never once after that day could be induced to touch bread soaked in its seeming wastes. But halting at one of the cities of the plains, into which the surrounding country has poured its wealth of fruit and beauty of vegetables and meats, the conviction of the productivity of the region is forced upon the most skeptical traveler. The loyalty of the people of the inland empire to this section is unswerving, and their confidence in its future greatness is boundless.

Pertinent Question.

We would like to inquire if the Santa Fe New Mexican will do its duty to the people of their children while teaching, with perfect success. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, cures wind colic, and is the best remedy sold by druggists in every part of the world. Twenty five cents a bottle. Its value is incalculable. Be sure and ask for Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup, and take no other kind.

Monstrous in stripes.

Narciso Mondragon, the defaulting ex-treasurer, was taken to the penitentiary late on Saturday afternoon. He will serve six years. Having been convicted and sentenced to five years' imprisonment for robbing the city public school fund of $3,000, he failed to secure bondsmen or perfect an appeal, and so concluded to make a clean breast of it. Accordingly, on Saturday afternoon, Mondragon appeared before Judge Laughlin, entered a pins of guilty in the other case against him, wherein he was charged with embezzling $662.67 of Santa Fe city funds, and the court sentenced him to one year more. He paid $4,600 and gone up to six years. Justice is not doing much crying over his fate. — New Mexican.

ON THE ISLE OF PATMOS.

A VARIETY Among Happy People Who Dwell in Prince's Simplicity.

Situated in the far east, south of Siberia, and less than twenty miles from the mainland of Asia Minor Patmos is ten miles long, five wide and less than thirty acres in circumference. A narrow isthmus divides the island into almost equal parts north and south with Port Sora on the east and Port Mezen on the west. It is the ancient city, and here St. John, Archibishop of Asia Minor, founded the first Christian Church in the Far East.

The annual shipments from California during 1891 were 41,167 tons, and other 177,000 tons, an increase over the previous year of 50,000 tons.

The Santa Fe will put a new carload of teams into effect on June 9, which will shorten the running time between Denver and the coast by two hours.

A. W. Wells, general superintendent of the Atlantic & Pacific, who went up to Pueblo the other day, in his special car No. 36, for his family, returned home last night. The only available place was the K. P. Hall, and that not roomy enough to seat the would-be patrons. The program was well selected and exceedingly well presented by the little ones who took part. The fan drill of the little girls and the liltresque of the same little boys of the same room, was a most laughable affair. "Little Mischief," (Kurt Moran) was cute. The four tailors, representing "When I Was a Bachelor," were finely planned, and caused lots of laughter. The "Song on an Errand" and "Bess and Her Lovers" were just too funny. The singing gave evidence of much care in preparation, and was appreciated by the older ones. The teachers of the Gladys school have worked hard all through the term, and have the satisfaction of knowing that their efforts were appreciated by the parents, as they were all elected for the coming year.

Rev. McCullough, of the Kroc, said that foreclosure proceedings would be instituted probably within two weeks. The small government tax of twenty-five hundred dollars is annually carried to the account of the pastor of Patmos. He has never had money for staves nor for pews. The choir is poor and however, The people are very religious, gentle, intelligent and brave. As we passed through the streets they came to the door and saluted us with genuine hospitality.

From the cars down the hill arched, the tall masses of Southwestern cliffs of Patmos, like some huge elephants walking from the sky, appeared to us, and against this stark background a solitary sail was seen late in the morning, light moving slowly in the misty seas toward some neighboring shore.

The approach soon hazing, hour after hour, in the status of the dawn, we drew nearer and nearer, the mist of mean, was becoming yet deeper. The winds and the waves had subsided, the rock bound shore and covered at many a grotto which responded to the voice of the deep. New Mountaine was distinct, situated at thousand feet from sea-level, enclosed in a white temple to the people, and about the white city appeared on the distant hills which encircle the Monastery of St. John the Divine. As it was near the creek latter a month later than the Latin, an ancient custom was observed, and the ceremony of each greeting was whitened in memory of the great event. Soon we entered the quiet harbor of the Santa and docked, desiring two-thirds of a mile where ships were at anchor. The lower town, the village of Santa, the principal port, is on the east side of the isthmus, on the shores of a quiet little bay, wherein one-third of the people live, mostly merchants, wheel-chair men, grapes and other fruits. The upper town is on a lofty hill, half an hour's ride up a steep road paved with huge round stones, hard to the foot of man and beast. Our arrival excited the little village. Men, women and children looked upon us wonderingly. Crowds followed us, gave us flowers and welcomed us to their homes. At the gate of the monastery the monks received us in a formal and gracious manner, and we were guests in the "Monastery of St. John the Divine," on the "isle that is called Patmos."

MACHINE-MADE SPEECHES.

Turned out with Marvelous Rapidity by a Recent English Invention.

There is need that both the typewriting machine and the phonograph are very ingenious and useful inventions, but the chief difficulty with them is the New York Times, is that they cannot be made to compete materially. It is in order to fit this that a distinguished inventor, whose name is for the present unknown, has invented an automatic writer, and judging from the private exhibition of the machine which was recently given in London to a committee of members of the Royal Society, it will be able to prove the greatest invention of this century.

In appearance the machine is said to be not wholly unlike a typewriting machine. It however is provided with a sort of hopper, in which are placed blocks of typewritten each one of which is provided with a complete word, instead of a single letter. When this hopper is filled and the small electric engine which furnishes the motive power of the machine is set in motion it instantly begins to print, of course what is printed depends in a good degree upon the selection of words which are placed in the hopper, but it is understood the machine can be used for almost any sort of composition.

At the exhibition already mentioned the hopper was filled with a supply of words relating to the English political situation and in ten minutes after the engine had been started the machine had printed two full columns, each about the length of an ordinary column of a newspaper. When these were read they were instantly recognized to be a specimen home-made in the general style of Mr. Gladstone. The hopper was filled with a choice selection of the very finest words in the language and the machine therupon printed what was at once perceived to be an essay after the manner of Mr. Ruskin on political economy. Many words were added and three pages of what any writer would have indefinitely accepted as a passage from a new novel by Mr. Moreton delighted the committee. The last experiment was made with the hopper filled with words taken from the Slang Dictionary and the result was a story in dialect which was held to be superior to almost any dialect story hitherto published.

STOPPED POACHING.

A Scotch gentleman, plagued by poachers, procured a cork log dressed in stocking and shoe and sent it through the neighboring village by the town crier, who proclaimed that it had been found in a man trap on the previous night in Mr. Ross' grounds, who desired to return it to its owner. There was no more poaching after that.

Dr. Strachan manages to keep on the street, but he is a very sick man.

THE RAILROADS.

What is Being Done on all the Western Lines.

The Santa Fe is said to have done more business this year on its southwest division than ever before in the history of the road.

The Illinois Central will shortly begin the erection of extensive car shops at Burnside, Chicago, the estimated cost being about $500,000.

The annual shipments from California during 1891 were 41,167 tons, and other 177,000 tons, an increase over the previous year of 50,000 tons.

The Santa Fe will put a new carload of teams into effect on June 9, which will shorten the running time between Denver and the coast by two hours.
